Death of Little Ella Lee Vaughan. RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 21.-Ella Lee

There is hardly another announcement that could have caused a sharper pang of sorrow to our heart than the above brief dispatch, for we loved dear little Ella Lee, the only daughter of an only sister, as we never loved any other child. Nearly three years ago she was taken with a liver trouble and inflammatory rheumatism, which confined her at the point of death for a long time, but she improved sufficiently last spring to inspire the hope that she would outgrow the disease and become her bright and happy little self again. Believing that a change of climate and surroundings ents to let her come to Kentucky and was for a time all that our most ardent desire for her welfare could hope and the little creature with her artless and loving ways soon entwined herself into the hearts of each member of the household. Remarkably bright and intelligent beyond her years, yet with the simple and winning ways of a child, little Ella Lee was company even for grown people and during her stay here many a heart was drawn to her, how strongly is shown by expressions of deep regret from everybody who met her. When she left us in again taken down never to rise again. En route to Rock Castle Springs last summer, she was our only companion in the stage journey. She had been chatting with her usual brightness and vivacity, but as the shades of night began to fall and the sombre mantle of darkness to wrap the mountains and valleys along the road, a sadness seemed to come over her and her mind wandered to heavenly things. After a silence of some duration she said in great earnestness, "Uncle Billy, I am going to join the church just as soon as I go home." We encouraged her as best we could, and talked a long time with her about it. She said she knew it would make her papa and same church with them, and she wanted to make them as happy as she could. # Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the cofor, bring out a new growth, and wender the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance." - R. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."

-R. T. Schmittou, Dickson, Tenn. "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my Thave used Aver's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. #### LOIS' THANKSGIVING.

How She Might Have Burned the Turkey-But She Didn't.

AM Theodore Thackery's step-fa-ther's first wife's sister-in-law, which fact goes to furnish proof positive to my mind that, in the distribution of souls and indi vidualities, chance did not, in this one instance at least, begin to live up to her splendid opportuni-ties. How I loved the lad, and what a good mother I'd have been to him-I, who could claim no kinship whatsoever, while his own maternal relativebut, pshaw! save and except her pots, kettles and frying-pans-what dd Samantha ney!" Thackery ever care for!

And that was why-because of her kitchenlimited vision-she so opposed Theo making such ironical remarks about the girl he loved that the boy took to bringing his poor, hurt heart over to me, his "Aunt Thoozy," to be bound up in the splints of sympathy and bandaged with the lint of love.

"Aunt Thoozy, I'm the most unhappy wretch that lives!" cried Theo, one cold, cheerless day in early spring, as he came abjectly-as was too usually his manner of late-into my kitchen where I sat picking over some "navy" beans I meant to bake. "Humph! Is that' so! Well, I'm sorry for you, Theo; but it seems you haven't spirit enough to move many mountains, my boy; and your mother's prejudices are higher and more numerous than the peaks of the Himalayas! Why don't you assert your-

"AUNT THOOZY, I'M THE MOST UNHAPPY WRETCH."

"Aunt Thoozy, I know what you mean; but I shall never oppose mother's wishesbless her!"

I said nothing, for I honored the loyalty of that martyr-son; but I made up my mind, then and there, to have a talk with Lois, to win Samantha over in some way, and so make Theo happy for life. When Theo left the house I put on my bonnet and shawl and went straight across the town to Judge Symms. I was shown into the elegant little-reception-room, and BANKER AND BROKER it wasn't long before Lois entered, and came smiling up to me.

"Dear Aunt Thoozy"-you see, I am "Aunt Thoozy" to every one in this small town-ten to one the darkies in St. Cloud Stocks, Bonds. Grain, Provisions and court call me that behind my back-"dear Aunt Thoogy," began Lois. chance brings you here so early in the day "Plots and schemes, my girl, and all sorts of Machiavellian plans! Sit down here beside me and let me do a little interviewing. Will you tell the truth?" "Perhaps!" laughed Lois, fetching a foot-stool close to my place upon the hearth-rug, seating herself upon it and looking away from me straight into the fire. "Is it about Theo?"

"'Out of the fullness of the heart," I quoted, laughing the while. "'Is it about Theo!' indeed! Of what o her should we either of us wish to speak? Poor Theo!" "Poor Theo," she echoed, with a sigh; then frowning, said: "Well; what of him!"

"Lois, he loves you -"

"Oh, it's easily understood, Aunt Thoozy; I am not going to trouble Theo another day. He may put me out of his heart entirelyit's a most trifling portion of it I possess when all is said and done! For Mrs. Thackery seems to have filled it to such a degree that -"

"For shame, Lois Symms! That is Theo's greatest virtue-his love for his mother! To be sure if I were Samantha Thackery I'd we less selfish and exacting, and try to -

"Yes, you would; dear, dear Aunt Theozy! And you'd even take a poor girl into your kitchen and teach her how to be a fit wife for your son-that's what you'd do, you dar-

As these words were spoken, and as she stood with her young arms around me, a great probability came like a cloud-burst upon me. There, now, was a practical thing I could do-a practical thing I would do! I had felt that some plan would suggest itself if I should go to Lois, and, behold! I saw her, in my mind's cye, in my own model kitchen, gowned in calico and neatly aproned, standing before my square table kneading dough, peeling potatoes, and even stirring up cake! "Is Theo," I began, striving to speak calmly, "is Theo worth the effort? Would you come and live with me this summer and go through a regular course of study -would you, Lois? My saying it may sound a bit egotistical, but Samantha Thackery can't hold the tiniest Christmas candle to my cooking; and-" "Aunt Thoozy, you are an angel—a dear, blessed, wingless angel! You know that Theo is more to me than my life; and how I have despaired of ever coming into possession of that splendid youth-that prince among men-who has the strength of a lion and the heart of a dove! But, thanks to you, I'll win him now, and my mother-inlaw-that is to be-shall eat her own words as surely as she shall cat my own bread

-and may both prove digestable!" There never, to me, was a summer like that. I forgot, almost, that I was a lonely old woman, whose treasures were laid away in the cemetery beside Bethel Chapel-and I felt my heart growing young again in the cheerful presence of the two dear young

For there were two dear young people very often-Theo managing to slip into the kitchen at many a noontime, and if I didn't know Samantha Thackery well (she came in state and ceremony on an average of twice a year to call), I'd have been too uneasy to have enjoyed as keenly as I did a sight of their happiness. We began a regular course together, my apt pupil and I, from setting the sponge of the first loaf to spreading the icing upon the most delicate of layer cakes; and, by the time the sumac bushes waved little scarlet bannerets in the autumn winds, the baking and brewing of Lois Symms would have done many an older housewife credit. Judge Symms said that his niece might be married at any time I thought proper; indeed, he seemed to kindly give the girl to me to do for as my own-and with this gift came a goodly sum to clothe her becomingly for her bridal. In the hazy October days, therefore, Lois and I were busy sewing at the long white seam.

I had such a time making Samantha Thackery consent to spend Thanksgiving with me; but I won the day, and on the eve of this great occasion Lois and I had many a confidence, anxious and otherwise, to exchange together. Theo was forbidden the premises; and when he did sneak in somewhere about six o'clock, he found nobody but a lonely old lady sitting knitting in her easy chair before the fire.

"Where's my-" "Theo, is that you?" queried I, stopping his mouth with my own tongue-clatter. "I was just hoping you'd come around. I want to go over to your mother's. Theo, and you must lend me your arm-it's quite a jour-

"All right, Aunt Thoozy: but where's-"Musn't ask questions of your elders, boy. Just hand me that shawl yonder-thanksome along!

We found Samantha Thackery pieceing "sun-rise" quilt, her dear, old, foolish head bent low over the odd bits of calico in her lap. I kissed her, as I always do, took the rocking-chair Theo set out for me, and after a furtive sign of dismissal-a silent signal that sent him upstairs to his own room -I began:

"Samantha, I have something I think rather important to say to you to-nightsomething I had no chance to speak of when I was here last. Have you heard of the help I've had all summer and fall?"

"Yes, Arathusia, I heard of your having girl; but as I don't believe in hired help myself I didn't inquire into the matter. Well, has she up and left you in the riiddle of your preparations for Thanksgivinggone off with your triple plate, or -'

"Nothing of the sort, Samantha! She's a good girl, honest and painstaking; and as far as leaving me goes, she never thought of such a thing, unless, indeed, you want

"Unless I want her-Arathusia Simcoe, are you wild?" " I believe I was thinking more of Theo than yourself, Samantha, when I spoke."

"Yes. Theo, you know you've always said you'd like your son to marry a girl who could keep house for him -" "You are right there! And the sooner he gets that frittering little piano-player out of his head the better!" "Out of his heart, you mean! Well, this girl has been under my instruction all summer and fall, and, though I shall hate to part with her, with a little assistance from you I feel sure Theo will be made to see what is best for him. Please eat your Thanksgiving dinner to-morrow with this idea ip view-criticise the viands all you choose-and I'll see that Theo -" "Oh, your word is law to him!" said the boy's mother; and I smiled to think she shot her arrow nearer the mark than she

"What is the girl's name?" asked my "Oddly enough, her name is the same as yours-Thackery." "Oh, there are more Thackerys about here than there are mosquitoes in Sawyer's swamp! I'll think over what you have said. Arathusia."

On Thanksgiving Day in the morning Lois tucked her pretty shining hair close under a trim, stiffly-starched little sunbonnet, put on a great gingham apron over the dotted blue calico of her gown, rolled up the sleeves until two pink dimpled elbows were exposed to view and flew to work. Her eyes were bright as diamonds

The old lady's eyes scanned her pretty countenance with no sign of recognition, and she had no more idea whose little trembling hands took her best bonnet carefully upstairs than I had of supposing she would know the bangless, ribbouless Quakerish-looking lassie to be her pet aversion,

From roast turkey to cream pie the dinner was delicious, and the Thack rys ate as if nothing so good had ever been before tasted. Samantha tired herself in the

LOIS ON THANKSGIVING DAY. eulogistic commendations she heaped upon the head of the happy girl, who waited upon her every syllable as if they were each a pearl of great price, which she would fain string upon love's golden strand!

When the toothsome dainties had all been discussed, at a sign from me Theo led Lois by the hand to where his mother stood before the big open fire-place and breathed rather than spoke: " Mother!"

With a little look of wonder on her dear old face she turned and gazed at the two ir "Mother, this is Lois-this is Lois, my wife, who has won her right to your love and consideration-" "Your wife, Theo?" the mother cried in tones of profound astonishment, yet holding out her arms toward the crimson-cheeked girl-" your wife?" 'Yes, Samantha, his wife," quoth I. She learned to cook, since only through your stomach could your hard old heart be touched. Take her, Samantha Thackery; take her as a precious gift from me; for she is my heiress, and I am the happiest old woman alive!" "God bless you, my daughter, and you, too, Theodore, my son! But why this haste; and why was I, your mother, not to see her own son married. Why, I say. Speak, Arathusia!"

"Because it was too great a risk to run," vouchsafed I, between laughing and crying; "too great a risk, and Theo's happiness all at stake; for she might, you know, have burned the turkey!" Eva Best. EVA BEST.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials : --

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was com-pletely cured." - John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for cight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my expe-rience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results. Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."-Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas. "I had a dfy scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyron, (of Fernandina, Fla.,) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a biemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A.
